

important employment and life skills, the program hopes to graduate students with a better understanding of their community's needs, a passion for social change, and an awareness of their role in the solutions to these challenges.

Students participating in this program will build a minimum of two homes per year (one home each semester). Approximately 25 students participate in the program each semester.

Students participating in this program are identified as at-risk of dropping out and are often economically challenged. They frequently do not have appropriate outerwear, boots, gloves or coveralls necessary for working outdoors in Colorado winters. Project club members have partnered with the LEADS group of the Greeley Chamber of Commerce to provide coats and gloves for these students. Funds requested for this project will be earmarked for coveralls and appropriate shoes or boots which can be kept in the construction trailer and used for future cohorts of student participants.
