

The current Aid for Friends homeless shelter in Pocatello is the residential house shown at the left. On busy nights 60 persons, including 20 children, are in residence. It is overcrowded now. Above left, Aid for Friends Director B.J. Stensland stands in front of the new shelter with greater capacity. It is a commercial building being refurbished to provide overnight space for men, women, and families with children, food service, laundry, job training and more. The Rotary project is to purchase and install a play set.

Spending plan:
 Current best product quote $3,689
 Shipping $991
 Budget for indoor play/games $320
 Rotarians will assemble and install

Pictured above is a Port Liberty model playset designed for 12-14 children ages 2-12. The product weighs about 1,000 pounds. It requires a safe zone about 20x26 feet. The product is ADA compliant, has a covered roof for sun shade, a 36 inch elevated platform and good warranty.